GW AWARDS ITS FIRST MINORITY PRE-DOCTORAL FELLOWSHIPS

WASHINGTON, DC -- Beatriz Betancourt Hardy and Eileen M. Hayes are spending the 1991-92 academic year teaching and completing their doctoral dissertations at The George Washington University. They are the first recipients of GW's new Minority Graduate Fellowships for Dissertation Research and Writing.

GW President Stephen Joel Trachtenberg, who originally proposed the Fellowships, says, "We have a commitment to groom new faculty members by providing opportunities for graduate students, especially minority graduate students. This Fellowship recognizes that the hardest step is often completing the Ph.D."

The Fellowships are awarded competitively based upon the candidate's interest in future university teaching, evidence of scholarly potential, strong academic records, recommendations and the compatibility of the candidate's field with one of five GW divisions. Fellows receive a renewable $20,000 award.

Hardy, whose major field is early American history, is a 1983 honor graduate of Goucher College, with an MA degree in American history from the University of Virginia. She began her doctoral studies at the University of Maryland-College Park and plans to become a history professor.

Her dissertation topic is "Papists in a Protestant Age: The Catholic Gentry and Community of Colonial Maryland, 1689-1776." She chronicles the experiences of Maryland Catholics during a time when they were denied the rights to vote, to hold office, to worship publicly or to openly educate their children as Catholics.

Hayes has just begun research on her dissertation, "Toward an African American Women's Music." She will develop a social history and ethnography tracing the involvement of black women during the late 1960s and 1970s in the music which grew out of the contemporary women's movement. Sweet Honey and the Rock is among the more prominent women's groups that she is studying.

Hayes, who plans to become a music professor, is an honors graduate of Temple University. She received the MA degree from Indiana University-Bloomington and studied piano for two years at the Peabody Conservatory of Johns Hopkins University. She began her Ph.D. program at the University of Washington-Seattle.

In describing the new program, Roderick S. French, vice president for academic affairs at GW, says that sometimes it is possible to achieve two or three good objectives with a single initiative. "In this case we are doing something useful for two fine young scholars, something valuable for the University and something that makes a contribution to American higher education, all at the same time."

GW FACULTY STRING QUARTET LAUNCHES 1991-92 FACULTY ARTISTS SERIES

EVENT: The GW Faculty String Quartet, composed of faculty members from the department of music at The George Washington University, will present the opening performance of the 1991-92 Faculty Artists Series. The quartet features violinists George Steiner and Mary Findley, violist Richard Parnas and cellist John Martin. The ensemble will perform musical selections from Mozart, Barber and Ravel.

WHEN: Monday, October 21, 1991
8:00 p.m.

WHERE: The George Washington University
Marvin Theatre
800 21st St., NW

COST: $5 for general admission
$3 for GW faculty and staff
$1 for students and senior citizens

BACKGROUND:

Steiner has appeared as a soloist with numerous symphony orchestras, and has been concertmaster of the National Gallery Orchestra and associate concertmaster of the National Symphony Orchestra. He is the former chair and professor emeritus of GW's department of music.

Findlay has performed at Carnegie Hall and the Library of Congress, and has toured the United States, Germany and Scandinavia. She earned a DMA degree from the University of Cincinnati.

-More-

Parnas recently retired as principal violist of the National Symphony Orchestra (NSO), where he performed in many of the NSO's chamber ensembles and as a soloist.

Martin has been principal cellist with the National Symphony Orchestra for over three decades, appearing often as a soloist. He studied at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, and later, with Rostropovich.

GW SCHOLAR EXAMINES EVOLVING WOMENS ISSUES
IN DEVELOPING A POST COMMUNIST SOCIETY

Sharon Wolchik, director of the Russian and East European Studies program at The George Washington University, has received a $60,000 grant to study "The Role of Women in the Transition to Post-Communist Rule in Central and Eastern Europe."

The one-year grant was awarded to Wolchik by the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation Program on Peace and International Cooperation.

"This is an aspect of the transition that hasn't received very much attention" Wolchik says of the project which is scheduled to begin next January.

During the year, she will make several trips to Central and Eastern Europe to examine such issues as employment, social services, reproductive rights, child care and politics as they relate specifically to women in developing post communist societies. Special emphasis will be placed on developments in Czechoslovakia.

GW SCHOLAR EXAMINES THE FINER POINTS OF DIPLOMACY IN THE INFORMATION AGE

Foreign diplomacy is no longer the exclusive domain of diplomats, but a public forum between politicians and the peoples of negotiating nations, says George Washington University Diplomat-in-Residence Walter Roberts.

"Today, diplomacy involves not only government-to-government relations," says Roberts "but relations with the people of other countries as well..." carried out with the help of the media, universities and other public institutions who promote public debate and cultural exchange.

Instantaneous communication by cable or telephone "allow heads of government and foreign ministers to speak or meet together without the use of ambassadorial intermediaries," he writes. And, "over the years, nations have employed cultural programs abroad, most of them to create a balanced but positive.

image of their countries for the purpose of enhancing their foreign policy objectives."

Therefore, in the information age, a diplomat might just as easily be a ballerina as an elected official, Roberts contends. But, also, "in the age of global media and the global spread of popular culture, the images one nation has of others may become increasingly stereotypical on the basis of what is most prominent in the news of the day and the fad of the moment."

Roberts shares his views in an article, "The Media Dimension II: Diplomacy in the Information Age," which appeared in a recent issue of the British journal, The World Today.

A career diplomat who served in Yugoslavia, Switzerland and Austria, Roberts was recently confirmed by the U.S. Senate to succeed Louis B. Susman as a member of the United States Advisory Commission on Public Diplomacy.

ARTIST'S BIOGRAPHIES

TISH CARTER, a solo artist trained in dance and visual art, has developed a performance form that encompasses many disciplines to make its points and effects. Each performance is based on a metaphor--an image that can be turned inside out and around to expose and illuminate the different meanings and associations it conjures. The separate parts of her impressionistic theatrical experiences have their own integrity, yet together build an evocative enigmatic whole. Carter uses dance and gesture, found and original text, composed sound and music, and sculpture to create unique environments for movement, language and objects.

DC CONTEMPORARY DANCE THEATER (DCCDT), a professional modern repertory dance company, was founded in 1984 by Artistic Director, MIYA HISAKA. DCCDT offers training and performance of a broad spectrum of American dance styles from modern, jazz to neoclassical works. DCCDT has realized its artistic goals through the development of a diversified repertory representing some of America's finest choreographic talent. In the company's choreographers program, members work with internationally and nationally noted artists in the creation of original contemporary dance.

MAIDA WITHERS and THE DANCE CONSTRUCTION COMPANY was founded in 1974 to create and produce original dance works for stage, sites, and video in a collaborative process with visual and performing artists. Maida Withers, founder and Artistic Director, mixes imagination and daring with a keen sense of formal structure and beauty. Dances are often issue centered and epochal in scale. Since 1987, the company has created works for stage and video to celebrate the earth and on behalf of ecology. Maida is engaged with other international artists in the emerging role of artists and arts on behalf of global ecology collaborating with organizations such as Save the Rainforest, Campaign for the Earth, International Friends for Transformative Art, and International Celebration Artists.

MEDIA ADVISORY

ARTHUR MILLER TO DISCUSS THE PUBLIC'S RIGHT TO KNOW
VERSUS THE RIGHT OF PRIVACY

EVENT: Arthur R. Miller, legal editor for ABC's "Good Morning America" and the Bruce Bromley Professor of Law at Harvard University, will address National Law Center students at The George Washington University. In his speech, "Privacy and the Media," Miller will examine the clash between the public's right to know versus an individual's right to privacy.

Miller's speech is part of the National Law Center's Fall Enrichment Series.

WHEN: Thursday, Oct. 31, 1991
4:15 p.m.

WHERE: The GW National Law Center
Lerner Hall, 2000 H Street, NW
Lower Level, Room 101

ADMISSION: This event is open to the National Law Center community and media representatives only.

Arthur Miller, the Bruce Bromley Professor of Law at Harvard University, is nationally known for his work on such issues as court procedure, copyright and unfair competition and remedies. He also is widely recognized as an authority on the right of privacy. Miller's book, "The Assault on Privacy: Computers, Data Banks and Dossiers" (1971) is still used today.

--MORE--

For years, Miller has brought legal issues to a wider audience through his extensive television appearances. He has served as "Good Morning America's" legal editor since 1980 and was the host of "Miller's Court," his own weekly television program. Miller also was the moderator for PBS series "The Constitution: That Delicate Balance," "Managing Our Miracles: Health Care in America" and "The Presidency."

The National Law Center established the Enrichment Program in 1981 to enhance the extracurricular life of its students. Each year, the program offers lectures and informal seminars with eminent legal scholars, judges, distinguished members of the bar and high-level public officials.

--30--

Media interested in attending Arthur Miller's speech should contact Kellie Boyet, GW Office of University Relations, at (202) 994-6460.

THE PROSPECTS FOR PEACE IN THE MIDDLE EAST

EVENT: As Middle East peace talks get underway next week in Madrid, Spain, The George Washington University starts its 1991-92 series of terrorism briefings with "The Middle East Agenda: Peace, Terrorism, Low-Intensity Conflict or War?" The program is sponsored by GW's Elliott School of International Affairs which celebrates its 25th anniversary this year.

Experts from government agencies, think tanks and academic institutions will discuss such issues as the prospects for peace in the Middle East, the release of hostages being held in Lebanon, the state of the Middle East arms race and where terrorists may strike next. How the U.S. victory in the Gulf War and the dismantling of a communist Soviet Union will affect Middle Eastern politics also will be examined.

WHEN: Wednesday, Oct. 30, 1991
4:00 - 6:00 p.m.

WHERE: The George Washington University
Marvin Center, Room 410
800 21st Street, NW

PANELISTS:

The program will be chaired by Yonah Alexander, a research professor of international affairs at GW. The speakers are:

Daniel Ferris, Washington representative for the Council of Lebanese-American Organizations

Eytan Gilboa, professor of international affairs at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem and a visiting professor at American University in Washington, DC

Robert E. Hunter, vice president for regional programs at the Center for Strategic and International Studies

Richard Latter, deputy director of Wilton Park, a think tank located in Great Britain

Robert B. Oakley, former ambassador and currently senior coordinator of the U.S. Institute of Peace

Peter S. Probst, special assistant for concept development in the Office of the U.S. Secretary of Defense

Robert Satloff, director of research for the Washington Institute for Near East Policy

Sabri Sayari, professor of political science at The George Washington University

GW PROFESSOR EARNS HONOR FROM CIA FOR PREVENTING TERRORISM

Retired U.S. Army Lt. Gen. Thomas W. Kelly was recognized by the Central Intelligence Agency on Tuesday, Oct. 22, for his "outstanding support" to the CIA's efforts to prevent terrorist acts. Acting CIA director Richard J. Kerr presented Kelly, who is currently an adjunct professor at The George Washington University School of Engineering and Applied Science, with the Agency Seal Medallion.

The medal, a three-inch bronze replica of the CIA seal, is awarded to individuals who have provided "sustained outstanding support" to the CIA and who have "made a significant contribution to the Agency's intelligence effort."

Kelly, who served during the conflict in the Middle East as the director of operations for the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said he was "deeply honored" to receive the medallion. "When the Pentagon and CIA cooperate, the nation benefits," he said.

Kelly was known during the Persian Gulf War as the "Voice of Desert Storm" because of his daily briefings of the media and has been commended for his frank manner in dealing with the press corps. He now conducts seminars on communications and media relations for GW's Continuing Engineering Education Program, making one-day appearances that are telecast on the GW National Satellite Network.

FALL DANCE CONCERT

has performed in New Orleans, New York, Maryland and Ohio. Among her honors are four choreographers fellowships from the D.C. Commission on the Arts and Humanities and a Meyer Foundation Grant.

Withers, founder and artistic director of the Dance Construction Company, is a professor of dance at GW. A native of Utah, she has been working with other artists on a full-length dance theatre work, "Tukuhnikivatz," on site in Southern Utah. The production explores the cultural patterns, values, earth, mythology and caretaking ceremonies of Native Americans. This work will be an important contribution to the artists for ecology movement, says Withers.

Withers work has been supported by fellowship awards for choreography from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Virginia Commission for the arts, Kansai University Exchange to Japan, the Fulbright Travel Award to Taiwan and the prestigious Dilthey Fellowship for Collaboration.

Nicolas has maintained his own company which focuses on the works of legendary modern dance pioneer Doris Humphrey since 1978. He has been guest artist at numerous colleges and universities throughout the U.S., teaching repertory, Humphrey Technique, composition and choreography. Nicolas currently is an adjunct professor at GW, where he was formerly guest artist in residence.

Student choreographers in the fall dance concert are Cynthia Ward, Cathy Thomas, Lara Hamblen and Vince Cacalano.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

GW'S FALL DANCE CONCERT REFLECTS DIVERSITY AND INNOVATION OF ITS CHOREOGRAPHERS

EVENT: Images from Hitchcock movies and a tribute to Rachmaninoff are among the featured works in the fall dance concert at The George Washington University. The choreography of guest artist Tish Carter, GW faculty Mino Nicolas and Maida Withers, and GW graduate students will be presented by dance students in the production. The concert, directed by Carter, is sponsored by GW's department of theatre and dance.

Carter's works are based on images taken from Hitchcock movies; Nicolas' work includes an "Homage to Rachmaninoff;" and Withers presents "When Our Voice is No More," a new work she describes as a "metaphor of wind as the voice of the earth."

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

WALTER ROBERTS, GW's DIPLOMAT-IN-RESIDENCE
WINS SENATE BID TO DIPLOMACY COMMISSION

Walter R. Roberts, diplomat-in-resident at The George Washington University's Elliott School of International Affairs, has won Senate approval to serve a four-year term on the United States Advisory Commission on Public Diplomacy.

The prestigious, seven-member Commission is an independent, bipartisan citizens panel established by Congress 43-years ago to advise the President, the Secretary of State, and the U.S. Information Agency (USIA) director on the government's international information and educational exchange programs.

"I am of course very pleased to have been appointed to this position," says Roberts. "Having spent the better part of my professional career in the foreign affairs area I look forward to contributing whatever I can to the strengthening of the international information and cultural programs which, in the wake of the communications revolution, have become so vital in the conduct of American diplomacy."

MORE

A career foreign service officer, Roberts distinguished himself in assignments as Counselor of the U.S. Mission to International Organizations, Geneva; Counselor for Public Affairs, Belgrade; and Press Officer for the U.S. Delegation to the Austrian Treaty Talks.

In 1971, he was appointed associate director of USIA -- then USIA's senior career position -- and in 1974 received the agency's highest honor. From 1975 until 1985, Roberts also served as executive director of the Board for International Broadcasting, the federal agency that oversees RFE/RL, Inc.

An expert on diplomacy in the information age, Roberts has been GW's Diplomat-In-Residence since 1986.

"I'm delighted that the Elliott School of International Affairs has recognized the importance of diplomacy in the information age and included in its curriculum such a course, which I have been teaching for the past few years," he says.

As a member of the advisory commission Roberts will help assess the policies and programs of the USIA, including the Voice of America, the Worldnet television service, the Fulbright scholarship program, and the Radio and Television Marti programs. The Commission's responsibilities extend also to such USIA grant recipients as the National Endowment for Democracy and the East-West Center.

MORE

The Commission's chairman is Tom C. Korologos, president of Timmons and Company, Washington, DC. Other members are Vice Chairman William J. Hybl of Colorado, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee and Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of El Pomar Foundation; Edwin J. Feulner, Jr. of Virginia, president of the Heritage Foundation; Priscilla L. Buckley of Connecticut, senior editor of the National Review; Richard B. Stone of Washington, DC, Vice Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Capital Bank of Washington and former U.S. senator from Florida; and Lewis W. "Pete" Douglas, Jr. of Colorado, active in real estate development and oil exploration in North and South America.

MEDIA TIP SHEET - GW EXPERTS ON THE MIDDLE EAST PEACE TALKS

The following is a list of faculty members at The George Washington University who can comment on a variety of subjects related to the Middle East peace talks.

ARAB-ISRAELI DIPLOMACY

Nathan Brown, Director, GW's Middle East Studies Program
Work (202) 994-0011, Home (703) 689-0366

"The positions of the parties to the Arab-Israeli dispute are so far apart that bringing them to the negotiating table is an unprecedented accomplishment. To bring the negotiations to a successful conclusion, however, will require that all parties revise their positions considerably. If they do so, the process will be lengthy, noisy, painful and perhaps violent."

Brown is an expert on Middle East political and cultural affairs, especially issues pertaining to Egypt.

U.S. DIPLOMACY

William Lewis, Professor of International Affairs and Political Science
Work (202) 994-7115, Home (703) 521-0881

"This may be the last roll of the dice for the Bush administration in its first term. If Israel and the Arab delegations are to avoid posturing, they will have to make concessions to each other to keep the diplomatic process going. The incrementalist approach by the Bush administration will be put to the test over the next week to 10 days."

Lewis is an expert on the international arms balance and political problems and issues in the Middle East and Africa.

TERRORIST THREATS

Yonah Alexander, Research Professor
Work (202) 476-4298 Home (301) 921-0785

"The upcoming Arab-Israeli peace talks do not diminish the dangers of terrorism in the Middle East and beyond. Like a volcano, terrorism can erupt unexpectedly, without warning. As the peace process gains momentum in the coming weeks and months, rejectionist secular and fundamentalist groups will intensify their terrorist attacks in the Middle East and elsewhere.

"The Madrid Conference, however, is a first step in a new Arab-Israeli era of conciliation. The process of peace might last not months but years and perhaps decades. But the alternative, containing the seeds of mass destruction escalation, is obviously worse."

Alexander is the author or editor of more than 44 books on international affairs, terrorism and psychological warfare. His frequent briefings on terrorism held at GW bring together top policy analysts, military and government representatives and scholars from around the world. Alexander spent much of this past summer in the Middle East lecturing on Persian Gulf politics and terrorism.

MIDDLE EASTERN DIPLOMACY

Bernard Reich, Professor of Political Science and International Affairs
Work (202) 994-6716, Home (301) 871-1426

"The probability of any bargaining table success is extremely slim. This is based on two facts. The substantive issues have not yet been addressed and the parties have made no real changes in positions on these issues."

For many years, Reich has served as consultant to the U.S. Department of State on Middle Eastern Affairs. Last year he met with foreign ministers and cabinet officials in Israel to assess Israel's role in the Gulf War. Reich is the author of "Quest for Peace: United States-Israel Relations and the Arab-Israeli Conflict," among other books.

MIDDLE EASTERN AND JEWISH HISTORY

Howard M. Sachar, Professor of Modern History
Work (202) 994-6428, Home (301) 942-7595

Sachar, an expert on Modern European, Middle Eastern and Jewish History, has written the definitive book on Israel's history -- "A History of Israel" (Vols. I and II). He has authored more than 10 books including, "The Course of Modern Jewish History" and "Egypt and Israel."

Sachar has been a lecturer and consultant to numerous government agencies and universities throughout the world. In 1982, he provided expert commentary for "The Palestinians," a television documentary aired by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

ADDENDUM - MIDDLE EAST PEACE TALKS

James Millar, Director of GW's Institute for Sino-Soviet Studies
Work (202) 994-6340, Home (202) 337-1428

"What is important is that the Soviet Union has withdrawn its interest in this area. Without the end of the Cold War and the collaboration of the Soviet Union, there would be no peace talks. Gorbachev is representing the end of an empire and the end of the Soviet Union's projection of power in this area."

Millar, a professor of international affairs, is the author of numerous books on the Soviet economy including the recently published "The Soviet Economic Experiment" (University of Illinois Press, 1990) and "The ABCs of Soviet Socialism" which won the Society of Midland Authors Award for Best Book in Non-Fiction in 1981.

He also initiated and directed the multi-million dollar Soviet Interview Project (1979-89). A team interviewed more than 5,000 former Soviet citizens about their lives in the USSR and produced the most comprehensive study to date of daily life in the Soviet Union.

NEW BOOK EXPLORES TWENTY YEARS OF IRISH TERRORISM

Terrorism in Northern Ireland has been a staple of everyday life for more than 20 years, and there is no real hope it will go away, says George Washington University research professor Yonah Alexander and Alan O'Day. Alexander and O'Day are the editors of a new book that examines the country's recent history of violent political strife.

"The Irish Terrorism Experience examines the evolving character of Irish terrorism from the perspective of a variety of academic disciplines," says Alexander, a noted authority on terrorism throughout the world. "Expertise in such fields as history, psychology, criminal justice, political science and communications are represented in the book."

For example, in a chapter that details the influence newspapers and partisan publications have had over the years on the political debates in Ireland, Richard Davis, chair of the history department at the University of Tasmania, writes that "Newspapers published by loyalist and Republican militants are central to the conflict, enabling propaganda to be spread despite censorship of the electronic media."

In "Northern Ireland Political Papers and the Troubles, 1966-90," Davis looks at daily newspapers such as the Belfast News Letter, Irish

--MORE--

News and Belfast Telegraph as well as Republican- and loyalist-produced propaganda papers.

Other chapters examine the influence of the Roman Catholic Church in Northern Ireland's politics and the Church's response to terrorism, the new rules and procedures that have been developed through years of criminal trials for people charged with terrorist activities, and the psychological impact such sustained violence has had on the Irish people.

Michael MacDonald, an associate professor of political science at Williams College, explains how a "dual identity orientation" in Northern Ireland derives from the different "felt nationalities" of the two communities. Protestants primarily consider themselves to be British more than just Irish, whereas Catholics attest to being strictly Irish. He contends that institutions in Northern Ireland that "empower the participants and grant them more control over their collective fates" will be needed to break the Irish political impasse.

Yonah Alexander is a research professor in The George Washington University's Elliott School of International Affairs. He has authored or edited more than 50 books on international affairs, terrorism and psychological warfare. His frequent briefings on terrorism sponsored by GW bring together top policy analysts, military and government representatives and scholars from around the world. Alan O'Day is a senior lecturer in history at the Polytechnic of North London and currently serving as a visiting professor of history at Concordia University in Montreal, Canada.

GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY ANNOUNCES GRADUATE DEGREE IN EDUCATION TECHNOLOGY LEADERSHIP VIA CABLE TELEVISION

EVENT: A press conference to announce the new graduate degree program specializing in educational technology leadership offered by The George Washington University School of Education and Human Development in cooperation with Mind Extension University: The Education Network (ME/U). ME/U, a pioneer in distance education, currently is in partnerships with 19 American colleges and universities offering undergraduate and graduate degree programs via cable television.

WHEN: Thursday, November 7, 1991
2:30 p.m.

WHERE: The National Press Club
Main Ballroom
14th and F Streets, NW

SPEAKERS: Stephen Joel Trachtenberg, President,
The George Washington University
Glenn R. Jones, Chairman and CEO, Jones International,
Ltd. and Mind Extension University
Greg Liptak, President, Mind Extension University
William Lynch, Associate Professor, The George Washington University, and Director of the GW
Educational Technology Leadership Program

The Educational Technology Leadership Program consists of 36 hours of graduate credit. Each scheduled course will be aired live on local cable stations carrying ME/U. During that time, students in the class can call in through a toll-free number to ask the instructor questions. If live participation is not an option, students can tape the class for viewing later. Upon completion of the program's credit requirements, students will receive a Master of Arts degree in education and human development from The George Washington University.

OFFICE OF UNIVERSITY RELATIONS

William F. Lynch

An associate professor of education at The George Washington University, William F. Lynch is director of the Educational Computing Laboratory in the School of Education and Human Development. An expert on the use of technology in education, Lynch will direct the educational technology leadership graduate degree program offered by GW and Mind Extension University. In addition to his teaching responsibilities, Lynch is very active in projects promoting the use of interactive multimedia in the nation's schools, universities and museums.

From 1976-1981, Lynch was a high school social studies teacher. After receiving his Ph.D. in curriculum theory and development from the University of Maryland in 1984, he joined the faculty at Trinity College in Washington, DC, as assistant professor. Lynch has been a member of GW's School of Education and Human Development faculty since 1987. He earned the bachelor or arts degree in history from the University of North Carolina in 1973 and the master of arts degree in religion from the University of Iowa in 1976.

DANCER/CHOREOGRAPHER TISH CARTER
DISCUSSES CREATION OF NEW WORK

EVENT: Award-winning dancer and choreographer Tish Carter will give a theatre talk in conjunction with GW's Fall Dance Concert. Carter will recreate the development stages of "The Trouble with Alfred-Prankster of Paradox," a dance based on Alfred Hitchcock films that will be featured in the Fall Dance Concert. Carter will be joined by two dancers to help illustrate her talk. In addition, clips from six Alfred Hitchcock Movies will be shown.

The theatre talk will be hosted by journalist and arts critic Lee Fleming.

WHEN: Thursday, November 14, 1991, 4:00 p.m.

WHERE: The George Washington University
Marvin Center Theatre
800 21st St., NW

COST: Free and open to the public

BACKGROUND:

Carter is currently guest artist-in-residence at GW. Trained in dance and visual art, she has developed a performance form that encompasses many disciplines. Her solo and ensemble work has been featured throughout the Washington metropolitan area in dance festivals and performances at The Kennedy Center, Washington Project for the Arts, Smithsonian Institution's Baird Auditorium and Dance Place. She also has performed in New Orleans, New York, Maryland and Ohio.

-More-

Among Carter's honors are four choreographers' fellowships from the D.C. Commission on the Arts and Humanities and a Meyer Foundation Grant. Her dances have been commissioned by numerous organizations, including New Music America, Coda and Liz Lerman/Dance Exchange.

A highly awarded writer, Fleming is a recipient of the Pen/Faulkner -- Larry Neal Writer's Award for Criticism. She has been awarded grants and fellowships for both criticism and fiction from Ucross Foundation, D.C. Commission on the Arts and Humanities, Mid-Atlantic Arts Alliance and the Government of Canada.

A former senior editor of Museum and Arts/Washington, Fleming regularly contributes to mass audience and arts publications. In addition, she has served as assistant director of the cultural development project for the National Endowment for the Arts. Currently, she chairs the Washington Local of the National Writers Union and is on the steering committee of their national book campaign.

COMMUNITARIANS HOLD "TEACH-IN" ON CAPITOL HILL PRESENT PLATFORM FOR 1992 ELECTIONS

EVENT: The first national "teach-in" on Communitarian thinking. Communitarianism is a new movement devoted to the cause of placing community welfare before individual rights. During the event, a Communitarian platform for the 1992 political elections will be presented and U.S. Senators Daniel Patrick Moynihan and Albert Gore, as well as members of President Bush's White House staff will participate.

The event will be led by George Washington University Professor Amitai Etzioni and other founding members of the Communitarian movement, including Mary Ann Glendon of Harvard Law School, William Galston from the University of Maryland and Daniel Yankelovich of DYG, Inc. Senators Moynihan and Gore and the White House staff members will provide commentary on the Communitarian platform.

WHEN: Monday, Nov. 18, 1991
10:30 a.m. - 5:30 p.m.

WHERE: Russell Senate Office Building
Room 325
Capitol Hill

BACKGROUND:

According to Etzioni, the teach-in will be dedicated to a discussion on the new Communitarian platform. The platform is divided into the following topics:

- * A preamble of Communitarian thinking, a movement which recognizes that Americans have individual rights which include responsibilities to the community;

- * Communitarians believe that communities must strengthen moral beliefs through the family, schools and other institutions in society.

HANS SINGER, INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIST, TO SPEAK AT GEORGE WASHINGTON

EVENT: Hans Singer, Ph.D., the elder statesman of world economics, will discuss his views on post World War II economic development in developing nations in a seminar at The George Washington University. Singer's appearance is part of the Distinguished Lecturer Series offered by The Elliott School of International Affairs.

The seminar is one of many special events being offered by The Elliott School during this 1991-92 anniversary year. The school is celebrating 25 years of independence from GW's School of Business and Public Management nearly a century of scholarship in international affairs.

WHEN: Thursday, November 14, 1991
Noon until 1:30 PM

WHERE: The George Washington University's Corcoran Hall
725 21st Street, NW
Room 302

Background: Professor Singer is one of the world's leading scholars on economics and developing nations. He has been a professorial fellow at the Institute of Development Studies at the University of Sussex, England, since 1969. The octogenian received his doctorate from Cambridge University under the tutelage of the late Lord John Maynard Keynes -- father of Keynesian Economics.

After a distinguished career as a researcher and lecturer, he became director of the UN Secretariat from 1947 until 1969. Singer guided the activities of various UN units including, the economic division of UNIDO (United Nations Industrial Development Organization). His work with the UN placed him in leadership positions with developing countries throughout Africa, South America and Asia.

Singer has been a longtime critic of International Monetary Fund and World Bank policies towards developing countries. He contends that the economic policies of developed nations like the U.S. create dualism and dependency in developing countries and hinder rather than help gain economic independence.

Among his recent publications are: two volumes with Soumitra Sharma, "Economic Development and World Debt" and "Growth and External Debt Management (Macmillan, 1989); and "Rich and Poor Countries" (four editions) Hans Singer, Javed Ansari, Allen and Unwin.

HANS SINGER, INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIST, TO SPEAK AT GEORGE WASHINGTON

EVENT: Hans Singer, Ph.D., the elder statesman of world economics, will discuss his views on post World War II economic development in developing nations in a seminar at The George Washington University. Singer's appearance is part of the Distinguished Lecturer Series offered by The Elliott School of International Affairs.

The seminar is one of many special events being offered by The Elliott School during this 1991-92 anniversary year. The school is celebrating 25 years of independence from GW's School of Business and Public Management nearly a century of scholarship in international affairs.

WHEN: Thursday, November 14, 1991
Noon until 1:30 PM

WHERE: The George Washington University's Corcoran Hall
725 21st Street, NW
Room 302

Background: Professor Singer is one of the world's leading scholars on economics and developing nations. He has been a professorial fellow at the Institute of Development Studies at the University of Sussex, England, since 1969. The octogenian received his doctorate from Cambridge University under the tutelage of the late Lord John Maynard Keynes -- father of Keynesian Economics.

After a distinguished career as a researcher and lecturer, he became director of the UN Secretariat from 1947 until 1969. Singer guided the activities of various UN units including, the economic division of UNIDO (United Nations Industrial Development Organization). His work with the UN placed him in leadership positions with developing countries throughout Africa, South America and Asia.

Singer has been a longtime critic of International Monetary Fund and World Bank policies towards developing countries. He contends that the economic policies of developed nations like the U.S. create dualism and dependency in developing countries and hinder rather than help gain economic independence.

Among his recent publications are: two volumes with Soumitra Sharma, "Economic Development and World Debt" and "Growth and External Debt Management (Macmillan, 1989); and "Rich and Poor Countries" (four editions) Hans Singer, Javed Ansari, Allen and Unwin.

NEW BOOK BY FORMER REAGAN ADVISOR
REFLECTS ON THE ATLANTIC ALLIANCE

The current NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) Summit represents a major turning point in Western strategy for peace says Constantine C. Menges, the former National Security Advisor to President Ronald Reagan.

Now a research professor of international relations at The George Washington University, and executive director of GW's Program on Transitions to Democracy, Menges has completed extensive research on the future of NATO and published a new book, "The Future of Germany and the Atlantic Alliance."

"The historic changes of 1989-1990, transitions to democracy in Eastern Europe and German reunification, offer the hope of a bright future of freedom and peace in the new Europe," he says.

His book explains why the future foreign policy of the new, reunified Germany can positively or negatively tilt the balance of the complex forces now reshaping Europe, the Soviet Union and the U.S. - European relationship. Menges concludes that if positive trends continue and the West pursues a "prudent and balanced" policy, the reunified Germany -- as a full political, economic, and security partner of the West -- will make an invaluable contribution to successful democratic transitions in Eastern Europe. This in turn would be a beacon of hope for the people of the Soviet republics.

His research also analyzes the process of communism unravelling in Europe, conceptualizes the stages of transition to democracy, and discusses the conditions for the further breakdown of communist regimes from within.

Constantine Menges served from 1981 until 1986 as special assistant to President Reagan for national security affairs and at the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

Other books by Menges include "Inside the National Security Council," (Simon and Shuster, 1988) a book on the presidency and the making of foreign policy, and "The Twilight Struggle: The Soviet Union v. The United States Today," (AEI Press/University Press of America, 1990) an analysis of five conflicts in four regions of the world from 1970 until the present.

WILDER NAMES GW'S STEPHEN FULLER TO THE GOVERNOR'S ADVISORY BOARD OF ECONOMISTS

Stephen S. Fuller, chair of the department of urban planning and real estate development at The George Washington University, has recently been named to the Governor's Advisory Board of Economists of the Commonwealth of Virginia by Governor L. Douglas Wilder. The advisory board advises Wilder and the Department of Finance on the state's economic outlook. Fuller is to help interpret Northern Virginia's economic performance and trends as they are central to the health of the state's economy.

"The next several years will be crucial to Northern Virginia's long-term economic vitality," says Fuller. "My task is to bring this perspective to the Board's analysis of aggregate forecasts."

Fuller has gained wide recognition for his forecasts on the local economy and his monthly economic indices produced for the Greater Washington Research Center. Fuller's insight has made him a frequent lecturer at Washington area business and government forums, including the Greater Washington Board of Trade. He also is widely cited in both broadcast and print media.

A prolific writer, Fuller is the author of numerous articles on economic development, housing and urban planning. His research focuses on the local economy and the changing role of the federal government as a major source of jobs and business activities within the general economy.

Fuller earned a bachelor's degree in economics from Rutgers University, a master's degree in city planning from the University of Mississippi and a Ph.D. in regional planning and economic development from Cornell University.

He is a resident of Alexandria, Va.

SALLY MAE CHIEF DISCUSSES WHAT'S MISSING IN TODAY'S MBAS

EVENT: Lawrence Hough, president and CEO of the Student Loan Marketing Association (Sallie Mae), will discuss the challenges MBAs confront in an increasingly competitive workplace and changing job market. Hough, who is a member of the GW Advisory Board, also will address what employers look for in MBAs. The discussion is sponsored by The MBA Association at The George Washington University School of Business and Public Management.

WHEN: Tuesday, Nov. 19, 8:00 p.m

WHERE: The George Washington University
Marvin Center, S-405
800 21st St., NW

COST: Free and open to the public

BACKGROUND: Sallie Mae is the United States' primary provider of credit to the educational finance market. As CEO, Hough has been instrumental in tripling Sallie Mae's annual student loan purchase volume. Under his stewardship, the organization has become one of the nation's 100 largest corporations. Hough joined the newly formed Sallie Mae in 1973 as manager, climbing the ranks to director, assistant vice president of planning and executive vice president, before becoming president and CEO. Among Hough's outside accomplishments are his involvement in the 1984 Olympics Committee.

The MBA Association is a student-run organization, representing 1500 GW MBA Students. The group organizes professional and career development events and community service activities among other programs.

ACTIVE LEARNING: FACULTY MUST CREATE EXCITEMENT IN THE CLASSROOM

"The biggest and longest-lasting reform of undergraduate education will come when individual faculty or small groups of instructors adopt the view of themselves as reformers within...the classes they teach," say two leading teaching experts in a new report published by The George Washington University.

In "Active Learning: Creating Excitement in the Classroom," educators Charles C. Bonwell and James A. Eison examine the faculty's vital role in the learning process and offer strategies to make learning a more active experience for students.

The report was published earlier this month by The George Washington University's Educational Resources Information Center (ERIC) Clearinghouse on Higher Education, in cooperation with the Association for the Study of Higher Education (ASHE).

A major aspect of active learning, say the authors, is that "greater emphasis is placed on students' exploration of their own attitudes and values." Active learning takes place when students are involved in more activity than simply listening to a lecture and taking notes. Students should read, discuss and write on the topics they hear in lectures. In effect, according to Bonwell and Eison, less emphasis should be placed on transmitting information and more on developing students' skills to use the information.

Bonwell and Eison provide an overview of several teaching alternatives to the straight lecture method, citing the advantages and disadvantages of each. Such methods examined include the modified lecture, questioning and discussion, visual and computer-based instruction, writing, cooperative learning, cooperative learning and peer teaching.

Many faculty members resist changing the traditional lecture format, say the authors, thus creating an additional barrier to active learning by students. Reasons for resisting change include faculty confidence in the lecture format, the historical perception of what roles faculty and students should play and instructors' fear that they will lose control of their classes if student participation rivals their own.

In addition, "faculty see few incentives to change," Bonwell and Eison say, citing the lackluster support colleges and universities have for experimentation in the classroom. "By not providing clear and visible rewards for innovative teaching, institutions have implicitly endorsed the status quo of classroom instruction."

The authors provide a short survey to help faculty members examine their own teaching methods. They also recommend active learning methods to use for particular students and class requirements.

Bonwell is director of the Center for Teaching and Learning and a professor of history at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau, MO. The founding president of the Intellectual Skills Development Association, he was honored by the American Association of Higher Education and the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching for his leadership in the teaching field.

Eison is the founding director of the Center for Teaching Enhancement at the University of South Florida in Tampa. The editor of "The Journal of Staff, Program and Organization Development," he is the co-author of "Making Sense of College Grades" and has worked with faculty groups on more than 40 campuses to improve teaching methods.

"Active Learning: Creating Excitement in the Classroom" is No. One of the 1991 Higher Education Report Series from the ERIC Clearinghouse on Higher Education and ASHE. ERIC is a sponsored project of The George Washington University's School of Education and Human Development.

The monograph is available for $17.00 from: ASHE-ERIC Higher Education Reports, The George Washington University, One Dupont Circle, Suite 630, Washington. DC 20036. Copies for review by educational publications are available upon request.

FORMER REAGAN OFFICIAL COMMENTS ON
NATO SUMMIT AND U.S. DEFENSE IN EUROPE

Former Reagan Administration official Constantine Menges says that today's NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) summit meeting may be a major turning point in the U.S. role in European defense. Menges, a Research Professor of International Relations at The George Washington University, is director of GW's Program on Transitions to Democracy.

"Europe is beginning to take its own security more seriously, which is a welcome development," says Menges. "But it is equally important that President Bush preserve a significant political and military role for the U.S. in maintaining peace and providing a basis for building democracy in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union."

Menges is the author of a new book, "The Future of Germany and the Atlantic Alliance," which explores how the future foreign policy of the new, reunified Germany will affect the balance of the complex forces now reshaping Europe, the Soviet Union and the U.S. - European relationship.

From 1981 to 1986, Menges served as special assistant to President Reagan for National Security Affairs and at the Central Intelligence Agency.
